

ABSTRACT

A rudder position indicator apparatus includes a cam mounted on a steering linkage of a watercraft. The steering linkage is coupled to a rudder. When the rudder is in a straight position, the cam activates a micro switch, which in turn, supplies a ground for an indicator light to illuminate. The indicator light can be located on a dash of the watercraft.